

One of the principal matters to be discussed during the two days' session is the action of the legislature in taking from the newspapers a large amount of official advertising to which the editors think themselves entitled.

FACTORIES RUSHED, ALL HANDS BUSY

JANESVILLE MANUFACTURERS
RESUME WORK AFTER TAK-ING ANNUAL INVENTORIES.

GOOD TIMES FOR ALL

Increasing Demands for Products Will Necessitate Increase of Force in Some Cases.

Most of the factories throughout the city have resumed work with their usual force after the big celebration of last week and the full production is due to the work of taking the annual inventory. In several cases the factories are unable to attend to the demands made upon them by their customers and the employees are working at their pressure to try to get even with the trade.

The Hough Shado company is still in the midst of its busy season and during this hot weather find that the demand for their product is so great that they are unable to adequately supply it. All hands are kept very busy and there is no likelihood that the pressure of the demand will decrease for some time, especially if this extremely hot weather continues.

The same conditions obtain in the factory of the Caloré company where the increasing demands for the fireless cookers are beginning to tax the capacity of the factory. The travelling representative of the company, who recently returned from a long trip, made through the far west and the east states in the interests of the firm anticipates even greater demands for the product. With this expected increase in the popularity of the fireless cooker, together with the increased efficiency of the plant due to the tireless efforts of the new manager, Mr. Davies, the prospects for the future of the company are very bright.

The Janesville Machine company has not resumed work as yet with its usual force. Only a small number of men are now employed principally at repairs while the completing the inventory. At this season the company usually finds it necessary each year to reduce the force somewhat, due to the lull in the business and this is the situation at present.

In the Janesville Wire company's shops the regular force is again at work and everything is running very smoothly. The Lay-Watson shoe company's factory is experiencing a rush of work at present and an increase in the force is expected to be made in the near future. The services of a few additional experienced cutters are needed first to attend to that part of the work and as soon as those can be secured there will be need for many others to attend to the extra work which is demanded by the rush of orders that continue to come in from the retail dealers.

The rush experienced by the Janesville Shirt and Overalls company before the Fourth still continues and shows no signs of abating. The hum of the machines operated by about sixty girls and women continues incessantly during the entire time that the shops are open each day and the shipping department finds it necessary to send out the manufactured products at once to fill the orders that are coming in.

Annual inventory still occupies the attention of the clerical force in the offices of the Janesville Carriage company. Very few of the regular operatives are found necessary for the present and no definite time is set when the work will be resumed at the usual rate.

LINK AND PIN. FIRE APPARATUS ON SWITCH ENGINES

Chicago & Northwestern.
South Janesville Yard Engines Prepared to Fight Fires Near Tracks. Like Protection in Other Yards.

In order to provide protection from fires that might result from sparks thrown out by locomotives into the grass adjoining fields on the right of way, all switch engines in South Janesville yards are now supplied with apparatus for use in such emergencies. Engines 167, 247 and 685 have each been fitted out with a box on the running beam containing fifty feet of two-inch "Planet" fire hose and a fire nozzle. With this apparatus it is expected that the dangers of fires will be minimized. This additional protection was taken to prevent any fire that might occur recently on the farm of Mr. Muthy in South Janesville when a fire thought to have been caused by sparks from an engine destroyed a part of his hay standing in the field and endangered his farm buildings. Similar equipment will be placed on the switch engines especially where farm lands adjoin the right of way in the vicinity of the yards. In cases of emergency where fires may break out along the tracks at any point on the line these engines can also be used as a means of protection for the property nearby. Until the present time no equipment of this kind has been supplied excepting in the Chicago yards in the vicinity of Milwaukee.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT NARROWLY AVERTED

Farmer Thrown From Wagon in Edgerton by Overheated Cow—Runaway Prevented—Other News.

[Special to this Gazette.]
Edgerton, July 13.—What might have resulted in a serious accident yesterday afternoon was averted by mere chance. John Affeldt, a farmer of Newville, was delivering a fat cow to one of the local butcher shops. The day being hot the animal was overcome by heat and with froth in the mouth began to get unruly and commenced to plunge about the wagon when entering the city limits. With one jump the animal succeeded in knocking the driver from the spring seat and Mr. Affeldt was thrown to the ground in front of the dashboard. Hanging onto the tongue of the wagon with his left hand and at the same time trying to guide the runaway team with the left hand it was by mere chance that the team was stopped in front of the city fountain on Front street. Although dragged a considerable distance Mr. Affeldt withstood the exciting ordeal marvelously well and escaped without injury. After a short rest the animal was blindfolded and delivered safely at the slaughter house.

Racing Begins in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., July 13.—What promises to be the most notable race meeting ever held in Winnipeg was inaugurated today in connection with the Canadian Industrial Exhibition

now being held here. The meeting will continue seven days, during which time also stake events for trotters and pacers will be decided, together with three running races.

Long Race For Motor Boats.

New York, July 13.—All arrangements have been concluded for the power boat race which is to be started tomorrow afternoon from Huntington,

Mass., as the objective point. The race will cover a distance of 210 nautical miles. The contest will be conducted in boats of not less than thirty feet over all, and not exceeding, in the greatest length, forty feet on deck.

Only boats built and used for cruising are eligible.

WOULD TAX BRIDES OF NOBLES.

California Congressman Urges Levy to Discourage Title Seekers.

Washington, July 13.—A heavy tax on the dowries of American brides in international marriages, "so that penurious but titled fortune hunters may obtain but a small moiety of the price the bride pays him for a name which he himself dishonors by thus putting it up at auction to the highest bidder," was suggested by Representative Kahn of California in the house, as a way to stop alliances between American heiresses and "broken-down foreign noblemen."

BAES NEGRO MAIDS FROM CAR.

Louisiana Judge Fines Two Women

Under "Jim Crow" Law.

Shreveport, La., July 13.—That a negro woman cannot occupy a berth in a sleeping car where there are white passengers, even as a maid, in this state, is the ruling made by Judge

Blanchard in police court. Two negro maids taken from a berth of an incoming train on complaint of several white passengers were escorted to police headquarters in their night clothes.

Judge Blanchard fined them each $25 for violation of the "Jim Crow" law.

A Parisian Pastime.

There is scarcely a Parisienne of gentle birth who does not admit to a weakness for fancy work, or who does not occupy herself at some time of the afternoon or evening with plying her needle.

Embroidery work she once loved, and Irish crochet, but these in turn have been laid aside for tatting. Tatting is as much the rage in Paris as in Berlin and Vienna today, but it is a new sort of tatting, and requires the use of two shuttles instead of one, and richly-colored silks instead of white cotton.

The farm pump engine is one of the greatest labor savers ever used on a farm. It will do many things and do them so well that no farmer can afford to be without one. Large farms should have several of these little helpers. They have cut into the windmill trade to a great extent and are gaining in popularity every day.

At the top of the list of Farm Pump Engines stands the Challenge. It will pay you to look this engine over whether you are in the market at the present time or not as its many good points over its competitors will win you, and you will begin to figure how you can get one immediately. We will sell you our Challenge 2-horse power engine with pump jack, and chain to drive pump, a complete pumping outfit, guaranteed for five years at $85.00. You cannot afford to be without one.

SHARPLES CREAM SEPARATORS

The Sharples still leads them all. The Sharples Tabular Cream Separators are the standard of the world. There are many improvements in this Separator this year over last year. We do not ask a man to buy the Sharples just because we sell it but because his reason will show him after looking one over that the Tabular is the best Separator he can buy.

Come in and let us show you this Separator and you will buy no other.

IMPERIAL AUTOMOBILES

We have just taken the agency for the IMPERIAL Automobiles and we would be glad to talk with you if you are thinking of buying. They are up to the minute in construction and you will make no mistake in buying one.

VELIE BUGGIES

None better, few as good. When you are in need of a good buggy look them over. They stand the wear, look well and are built upon honor.

SILLO FILLERS

It will soon be time to fill the silo. You will need a Sillo Filler on your farm. Among the many Fillers on the market there are none better than Belle City, and none that will give you better results. We also handle the Appleton Sillo Filler. Look over both of these machines; it will pay you to investigate before buying elsewhere.

THAT PEACE PAID.
The announcement made by President Taft at Atlantic City, N. J., on Friday last, in the course of his address before the biennial convention of the Society of Christian Endeavor, with reference to the present state of negotiations for a treaty of unlimited arbitration between the United States and Great Britain, should give renewed courage and confidence to the friends of universal peace in all parts of the world. As diplomatic correspondence growing out of the peace proposal made by Secretary Knox to the representatives of the different nations was begun with Great Britain, it is quite natural that the greatest progress should be made in the negotiations with that country. These have now reached a point, according to the President's statement, where it becomes possible for him to predict the signing of a satisfactory treaty. The compact, he said further, would eliminate exceptions heretofore made in treaties that were calculated to narrow the range of arbitration. In other words, the "vital interests" and "honor" stipulations would be ignored in the new agreement, thus practically throwing all questions likely to arise between the two nations and all character of disputes into the melting pot of patient, calm, friendly discussion. There is not a question but that the President's hope of bringing half a dozen other European nations into similar compact will be realized if the two great English-speaking countries shall prove, by example as well as by precept, that there can be no international controversy beyond the pale of peaceful settlement. France has already indicated a willingness to become a party to such an agreement. Russia would only submit herself before the world by holding aloof from the universal peace movement, since she may be regarded as the mother of the Thugge conference. Germany is not so stubbornly opposed to the idea of unlimited arbitration that she is unwilling to be convinced of its feasibility. She is inquiring into it carefully, and may be one of the first of the great powers to accept it. It is all important that she shall be convinced of the practicability of the proposal; she does not need to be convinced of its theoretical advantages, and with her conviction will date the fall of modern militarism and the dawn of a new era in international relationship.

The prospects are as bright as the friends and advocates of permanent world peace could reasonably expect; they are brighter than the friends and advocates of universal arbitration could have dreamed of a quarter of a century ago.

This is the time of the year when the lure of the lakes take many minds from their business and into the wilds. Janesville has an outing spot that is hard to surpass, the Rock river, and it is difficult to understand why it is not more freely patronized.

The commission form of government has proved successful in Wisconsin where it has been tried. Enemies of the movement can look over the statistics and discover the truth of this statement.

The ice trust in New York is being sued for failure to supply the independent dealers with ice during the recent hot weather, thereby causing death and suffering among the poorer classes.

That eight-hour woman's working law promises to work hardships in certain lines of business in Janesville. Read it over and then wonder at its passage.

The Madison street car company has barred baby carriages, even the folding kind, on its cars. In consequence its superintendent is not the most popular man in Madison.

Vice President Sherman has an electric fan on his desk in the senate and it is needed if these long-winded speeches are to continue.

Suffragettes went up in a balloon the other day to distribute their doctrines properly and incidentally to look down upon mere man.

It is reported that the thermometer at the Wisconsin state capitol has burst and still the legislators do not take the hint.

King George's visit to Ireland was not as full of interest to the Irish as was expected. But perhaps George was just as glad.

Forest fires are burning in northern Michigan and the Canada's but not for the purpose of keeping the inhabitants warm.

This Controller Bay proposition in Washington is one that is bothering the state department greatly these days.

Chicago is to have double decked streets. There is something for the average Chicagoan to kick about.

It now looks as though the Arizona statehood bill will not be able to run the gauntlet of the senate after all.

Janesville is showing prosperity this year if the amount of building being done is any criterion.

Toward that reciprocal agreement the United States senate moves slowly, if not majestically.

Crop reports indicate that potatoes may climb into the luxury class unless we have more rain.

A balloonist who goes half way to meet a thunder storm will know better the next time.

PRESS COMMENT.
Little But, O My!
Monroe Times: Inquiry into express rates next. The little consumer still looks pretty beside the fat trusts, but he has acquired possession of a gun that makes the big fellows look uneasy.

Fair Enough.
Milwaukee Sentinel: If these statesmen of ours will only pass the reciprocity bill we are willing to reciprocate by turning them loose on the champagne circuit feeding what money they may devour.

A Back Number.
Wauwatosa Record-Herald: The ten hour day for working women is now a law. But the working men can work as long as they want to. "Man works from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done," is an old couplet that is now out of date.

Forget It.
Marquette Eagle-Star: General William H. Bushy, chief of engineers, who has personally inspected the work of raising the Maine, gives as his official opinion that the ship was blown up from within. No explosion from the outside could have caused the conditions existing. The primary cause of the explosion of the magazine will never be known. So much is settled. Now just forget to remember the Maine.

Can It Be?
Fond du Lac Reporter: Dispatches from Washington say that Pauline Wayne, the gift of Stephenson to President Taft is to be placed in the common stable. We wonder if this is the first sign of "Uncle Joe's" vanishing prestige.

Some Displacer.
Monroe Journal: A Welshman 8 feet 1 inch in height has been naturalized as a citizen of the United States. His name is George Auger, and home is in Bridgeport, Conn. He displaces more atmosphere than any man in America.

Not So Bad.
Oshkosh Northwestern: Speaking of the dangers of aviation, it has been feared that the number of deaths that have occurred in flight experiments during the past year has been only one for about each 60,000 miles of actual flight accomplished. Which is a showing that is not so bad, after all.

Forethought.
Burlington Times: There is some advantage in being close to the throne of the chief western man in Washington. The Senate voted itself a three days' recess just before the hot wave came on.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.
A DIABOLICAL MONSTER.

Among the horrors of the French Revolution the diabolical doings of Jean Baptiste Carrier stand out with lurid vividness. It is said that his brother revolutionists, steeped though they were in crime and blood, shrank in horror from the extremes to which he went in cruelties. Before the revolution he was an obscure attorney, but he took such an active part that in 1793 he was put in charge of revolutionary affairs in the city of Nantes. He organized a system of wholesale drowning. Boats were arranged with flat, movable bottoms, and into these were crowded priests, women and children. The boats were then towed out into the river Loire and scuttled, drowning all on board. Twenty-five times this was done, the boat often containing 150 or more victims. After the revolution Carrier was placed on trial for his iniquities. Instead of accepting his fate like a man, he pleaded like a coward, claiming that he acted under orders from others. But he was found guilty and guillotined, which seems an easy fate for such a monster.

BEING OBLIGING

Whenever any one of Walters' acquaintances gives a dinner or a theater party or any similar function and invites any girl who hasn't any particular man dangling after her Walters is always invited so that he can take her home.

Walters has a soft heart, not so much for the girls, who but for him might have to be out alone after dark, as for his friends, who need a man to act as an escort for the unattached girls. He appreciates the awkward position they are in, and instead of being otherwise engaged when he gets a call he always hangs up the receiver hastily and then jumps into a dress suit.

Of course, he is imposed upon sometimes, but as a rule he manages to get a fair degree of entertainment out of his duties. He even boasts of going to all the best parties and dancing with all the prettiest girls without ever falling in love and thus losing out in the game.

Walters had gone with so many different girls and had become so generally known for his obliging disposition that no one was at all surprised when he showed up at the Thompsons' dance with Frank Webster's girl.

Frank Webster's engagement to this girl hadn't been formally announced, but it was pretty well known, and if anyone but Walters had gone with her there would have been talk.

Webster had been suddenly called out of town, and in order that Sally might go to the dance called up Walters and asked him as a favor to take Sally. Walters, as usual, was willing.

All the way to the dance Walters explained to Sally just why Frank had had to keep his business engagement and break his social engagement with her. Still, she couldn't see just how it was, and so she felt a bit resentful.

She was holding Walters' flowers to her face while Walters explained Frank's position for the twentieth time. Then she suddenly asked: "But would you have broken your engagement with me to keep a business engagement?"

Floored, Walters declared that he'd have broken forty business engagements rather than break one with her. She smiled sweetly and drew out various other professions of devotion from him before they got to the dance.

Walters was always attentive to the girls as they would permit, so when Sally smiled her approval on his every action he put his whole soul into his attentions. Thus, before the evening was over the two were absorbed in each other and apparently forgot the presence of anyone else.

Walters' attentiveness was so marked and the two became so extremely exclusive during the evening that the others took notice to their conduct and quite a little gossip started.

When it came time to go home they forgot to say good night to their hostess so engrossed were they in each other.

Sally invited Walters to call the following day, and he was there on the minute. He brought along a big box of candy and the latest book, and together they had a perfectly delightful afternoon. Sally invited him to stay to dinner, and after dinner he went after his motor car and took her out riding.

It was while they were riding that Webster called, he having returned to the city. He sat waiting for two hours, but when they had not returned at 11 o'clock he put on his hat and went home.

After Walters had said good night to Sally he told himself on his way home: "She's a nice little girl. Frank's got good taste, but I don't envy him for getting tied down to the best of them."

He was very much surprised the next day, on meeting Frank on the street, that Frank bowed formally and coldly and passed him by. He wondered vaguely what the matter was.

A few days later he heard that Frank's engagement to Sally was broken.

"That's a curious thing!" he exclaimed, but it never dawned on him that he had anything to do with the affair.

The next time he met Sally on the street he turned aside to speak to her. It hadn't occurred to him to call on her since the dance and the party call. Showing attentions to Sally was a favor which he had done Frank, and he had done it to the best of his ability, but it was merely a favor.

Now he was stunned to see Sally turn away and walk in the other direction the minute he started toward her. He watched her retreating figure in amazement.

"Now, what do you know about that?" said he to himself.

And to this day he wonders what is the matter with Frank and Sally.

SAYS CAMORRA RULES ELECTIONS IN ITALY

Captain Fabroni Fearlessly Attacks Society's Leaders of Violence and Kidnaping.

Viterbo, Italy, July 12.—The accused Camorriste were made more uncomfortable than at any previous stage of their trial when Captain Fabroni, the detective, mentioned names most fearlessly and went deep into the political influences of this society. So bold was his testimony that the judge felt constrained to caution him to be more moderate in his statements.

Fabroni, in the guise of a clerk from the ministry of justice, devoted years to learning the alleged connection between the Camorra and the Neapolitan judiciary.

Along this line he said in substance: "The Camorrist has no political ideas. He exploits the elections and the elected for gain. The leaders distribute hands throughout the town and have recourse to violence to obtain the vote of the electors for the candidates whom they have determined to support."

"Those who refuse to vote as instructed are beaten, slashed with knives or kidnapped. All this is done with assurance of impunity, as they will have the protection of successful politicians who realize that they cannot be chosen to office without paying toll to the Camorra."

The lawyers for the defense attempted to create an incident that would result in interrupting the witness, but when the prisoners began a disturbance the president stopped it by threatening rap, the most turbulent, with removal from the courtroom.

UNVEIL WILLIAM PENN TABLET

Ceremony in London is Under Auspices of New York Society.

London, July 12.—In the presence of many Americans and a throng of other interested persons, a bronze tablet was unveiled today in All Hallows church in memory of William Penn, who was christened in that sacred edifice. The unveiling was accompanied with considerable ceremony and was conducted by Col. Robert L. Thompson, president of the Pennsylvania society of New York, under whose auspices the tablet was erected. Besides Colonel Thompson, the speakers included James S. Beck, William Guggenheim, R. T. Davies and the lord mayor of London, who was accompanied by the sheriffs.

Along this line he said in substance: "The Camorrist has no political ideas. He exploits the elections and the elected for gain. The leaders distribute hands throughout the town and have recourse to violence to obtain the vote of the electors for the candidates whom they have determined to support."

"Those who refuse to vote as instructed are beaten, slashed with knives or kidnapped. All this is done with assurance of impunity, as they will have the protection of successful politicians who realize that they cannot be chosen to office without paying toll to the Camorra."

The lawyers for the defense attempted to create an incident that would result in interrupting the witness, but when the prisoners began a disturbance the president stopped it by threatening rap, the most turbulent, with removal from the courtroom.

Walters had gone with so many different girls and had become so generally known for his obliging disposition that no one was at all surprised when he showed up at the Thompsons' dance with Frank Webster's girl.

Frank Webster's engagement to this girl hadn't been formally announced, but it was pretty well known, and if anyone but Walters had gone with her there would have been talk.

Webster had been suddenly called out of town, and in order that Sally might go to the dance called up Walters and asked him as a favor to take Sally. Walters, as usual, was willing.

All the way to the dance Walters explained to Sally just why Frank had had to keep his business engagement and break his social engagement with her. Still, she couldn't see just how it was, and so she felt a bit resentful.

She was holding Walters' flowers to her face while Walters explained Frank's position for the twentieth time. Then she suddenly asked: "But would you have broken your engagement with me to keep a business engagement?"

Floored, Walters declared that he'd have broken forty business engagements rather than break one with her. She smiled sweetly and drew out various other professions of devotion from him before they got to the dance.

Walters was always attentive to the girls as they would permit, so when Sally smiled her approval on his every action he put his whole soul into his attentions. Thus, before the evening was over the two were absorbed in each other and apparently forgot the presence of anyone else.

Walters' attentiveness was so marked and the two became so extremely exclusive during the evening that the others took notice to their conduct and quite a little gossip started.

When it came time to go home they forgot to say good night to their hostess so engrossed were they in each other.

Sally invited Walters to call the following day, and he was there on the minute. He brought along a big box of candy and the latest book, and together they had a perfectly delightful afternoon. Sally invited him to stay to dinner, and after dinner he went after his motor car and took her out riding.

It was while they were riding that Webster called, he having returned to the city. He sat waiting for two hours, but when they had not returned at 11 o'clock he put on his hat and went home.

After Walters had said good night to Sally he told himself on his way home: "She's a nice little girl. Frank's got good taste, but I don't envy him for getting tied down to the best of them."

He was very much surprised the next day, on meeting Frank on the street, that Frank bowed formally and coldly and passed him by. He wondered vaguely what the matter was.

A few days later he heard that Frank's engagement to Sally was broken.

"That's a curious thing!" he exclaimed, but it never dawned on him that he had anything to do with the affair.

The next time he met Sally on the street he turned aside to speak to her. It hadn't occurred to him to call on her since the dance and the party call. Showing attentions to Sally was a favor which he had done Frank, and he had done it to the best of his ability, but it was merely a favor.

Now he was stunned to see Sally turn away and walk in the other direction the minute he started toward her. He watched her retreating figure in amazement.

"Now, what do you know about that?" said he to himself.

And to this day he wonders what is the matter with Frank and Sally.

Cause Enough.
"You think she will marry again?" "I consider it probable. Her late husband left some tobacco coupons, but not enough to get anything with."—Washington Herald.

RURAL SCHOOL MEN IN SESSION TODAY

LARGE ATTENDANCE OF SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS FROM ALL OVER COUNTRY AT CONVENTION.

PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

Many Different Phases of Rural Education Were Treated by Competent Speakers—Interesting Meetings.

Over one hundred and fifty members of the school boards of the Rock county district schools were present at the sessions in the Court House this morning and the high school building this afternoon. In the afternoon the teachers who are attending the training school were present to hear the addresses.

At the afternoon session W. H. Hunt, State Graded School Inspector, addressed the audience on the subject of "Leadership and Education." His contention was that without some organization and leader at the head of the rural school system in the state and in each county, practically nothing can be accomplished. He drew a parallel between the city which pays between two and three thousand dollars to a man to act as principal of the city school and the county which could not spend more than nine hundred for a man to look after six times as many teachers scattered over the area of a county. Without effective leadership, he contended, there could be no advancement in the quality of the rural school system.

The second address this afternoon was delivered by J. B. Horden, Assistant State Superintendent, on "New School Laws, Especially the Teachers' Pension." Mr. Horden gave a clear analysis of the latter law and made clear the reasons of enactment. Mr. Horden gave a very convincing argument from the standpoint of one who was acquainted with the needs of the situation.

Morning Session.
Shortly after nine o'clock this morning the session of the school boards was called to order at the court house and Supt. O. D. Andsdel spoke a few words of welcome and outlined the program for the day. He expressed his gratification at the number of persons present and stated that this annual convention was growing in popularity throughout the county.

Charles E. Moore of the town of Magnolia was introduced and his topic announced: "Can Our Rural Schools Be Made Better? As Viewed by a Farmer and a Member of the County Board." In his estimation, the greatest problem confronting the rural population of the state today was the matter of educating the children in the country district and of devising some means of making the farm attractive to the growing boys and girls.

Improvements Needed.
Mr. Moore pointed out that there were many improvements needed in the school system of the state, to make it more attractive. Members of the boards had the power to do much to the matter and could include well furnished and attractive and well equipped school room. It was important, he said, to show the children that the board members were interested in the school and the interest would be communicated to the pupils.

Better results would be obtained in the schools of the country, the speaker maintained, if consolidation was more common. Ohio was setting the example for the nation in this respect and it has been proven there that the cost does not exceed that of the old system. Rock county has forged to the front in the matter of good roads and a training school for teachers—here was another important aspect which demanded consideration.

Mr. Moore urged greater efforts on the part of the school boards and the residents of the school districts all along the line in the matter of improving the work of the rural schools. It was a question of building up our homes so that they stand for all that is highest and noblest where the children may enjoy enlightenment and happiness. The prosperity of the country and progress of the nation depend on our concerted action for the betterment of the schools.

Hon. A. S. Baker Spoke.
Hon. A. S. Baker of Evansville, ex-assemblyman, spoke on the topic: "Better Preparation of Scholars for Life, As Viewed by a Business Man." He emphasized the benefits of proper training and pleasant surroundings, and suggested that the matter of heat, light and ventilation of school rooms be carefully considered.

According to the view-point of business, Mr. Baker brought out that a child should be trained and encouraged along the natural tendencies which will early develop. Every child will manifest some special interest which will indicate for what they should be fitted. Teachers should learn to recognize this as well as parents in order to train the boy or girl in the best possible way. The result will be more efficient preparation.

Mr. Baker mentioned important traits of character to be developed and strongly emphasized the moral side of education as a means toward securing the best character which is the greatest asset that can be obtained. The teacher's place here is important and her sincerity of purpose and idea of moral conduct as reflected in her teaching, must be vigorous and decisive.

Are Our Schools Better?

Superintendent Sylvanus Ames of the first district of Dane county expressed a doubt as to whether our country schools had improved to such a great extent, on the average, over those of forty years ago. He spoke on "The Better Training of Rural School Teachers As Viewed by a County Superintendent," and declared that, judging from the men turned out then and now, there is not such a great degree of difference.

The problem of teachers for the rural schools was an important one, said Mr. Ames, and the preparation of some of the teachers is not the best. Of about 115 teachers in this district in Dane county, there are only about six who have had more than a high school training.

Stock county has taken a step in the right direction," said Mr. Ames. "In the establishment of a training school. With it, twenty-five to thirty trained and experienced teachers will be turned out each year for service in the district schools."

Mr. Ames further treated the matter of competent instructors in the country schools, and told of various instances where unprepared teachers had failed. Preparation was the keynote of the matter, in his estimation, combined with a natural aptitude for the young.

The morning session closed with an address by W. E. Larson, rural school inspector, on the subject, "Problems of the Rural School."

SEEKS INFORMATION REGARDING FRIENDS

Local People Have Relatives in Burning Districts in Michigan and Fear They Are Missing.

As telegrams of inquiry concerning friends and relatives who live in the fire-swept districts of northern Michigan failed to bring any reply, the anxiety of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitebread of this city is increased by the reports in the daily papers. Mr. Whitebread, who is employed as car repair foreman in the South Janesville yards, lived in Au Sable until about ten years ago, and many of his relatives and those of his wife reside in that and neighboring cities which have been reported as destroyed by the recent fires that have devastated a large section of the northern peninsula of Michigan. After reading in the newspapers of the destruction that was being wrought in the vicinity of his old home, Mr. Whitebread sent a telegram addressed to friends who lived in one of the nearby towns, but no reply has been received and Mr. Whitebread fears that his friends may have been lost, or at least endangered.

Each succeeding newspaper report portrays the destruction as increasing every hour and the anxiety of Mr. and Mrs. Whitebread increases. They hope that the failure to receive a reply may be due to the fact that their friends may have been prevented from receiving or sending any telegrams on account of the lack of facilities for communicating with sections outside the burning district. On account of the complete disorganization of business and means of communication with that part of the peninsula it is almost impossible to gain accurate information from people who live there.

BAD FIRE DESTROYS BLAISDELL PROPERTY

TWO STORY FRAME STRUCTURE ON SOUTH JACKSON STREET, NEAR MILWAUKEE, RUINED THIS AFTER-NOON.

BUILDINGS IN DANGER

Business Blocks on Milwaukee Street Were Threatened for a Time by Stubborn Flames—Cause Is Unknown.

Fire which originated in the second story of the frame building owned by the Blaisdell estate at No. 10 South Jackson street, shortly after one o'clock this afternoon, practically destroyed the structure, and threatened to communicate to the neighboring buildings on Milwaukee street.

When the fire department arrived at the scene, huge clouds of black smoke were issuing from the roof and flames were leaping from the windows. It was evident that the fire had started in the second story as there was very little sign of fire in the lower portion of the building. The action of the firemen was immediately directed toward the adjacent business blocks on Milwaukee street occupied by the G. W. Hunt and the Orpheum theatre, and William Bros., grocery store, with the flats above them.

The wind came from the south and the flames were leaping dangerously near the windows and the openings in the mentioned buildings. Three leads of hose were laid and directed to the north side of the burning structure, two at the rear and one at the front.

On account of the amount of wood, shavings and other rubbish which had been allowed to accumulate in the building the flames had gathered much headway and the many partitions also hindered the firemen in getting at the fire. The entire effort was at first directed in preventing the further spread of the flames.

It was also reported that there was a thirty-gallon can of gasoline in an arway near the fire which led to increased efforts to keep the flames from the Milwaukee street blocks. The department was successful in this although the rear of the Orpheum theatre and of the Arneson tailor shop, was badly flooded by water.

The flames had gained rapid headway in the roof of the building and about forty minutes after the fire had started it partially fell in. The sides were badly burned and all the windows and sashes were out. The floors and partitions were badly damaged and the weight of the water had caused them to collapse in many places. At an hour after the fire had started there was still a number of stubborn flames to be extinguished and it was not until after three o'clock that the fire was completely out.

It is said that this is the fifth fire which has broken out in this building, which is one of the oldest and most dilapidated structures in the downtown district. The place is now demolished far beyond the hope of any effective repair.

The property is owned by the Blaisdell estate, the principal heir to which, it is said, is Joseph Blaisdell of Liverpool, England.

At a few minutes past three the fire was out, but the department was engaged in tearing down the walls of a small wing attached onto the main building in the rear.

NEW INDUSTRY TO BE-GIN ACTIVE OPERATION

Keystone Cement Construction Co. Will Erect New Buildings and Bring Men.

The Keystone Cement Construction and Mfg. Co. of Waupun, Wis., will commence operations here on their new buildings at the south end of McClellan Blvd. within a few weeks. They expect to be in active operation inside of thirty days. Several expert men with their families will be brought from the Waupun plant soon and employment will be given fifty or more people when the industry is entirely moved here from Waupun.

The Keystone company manufactures a complete line of cement products, besides their famous triple air chamber building block such as porch pillars, lawn vases, burial vaults, ornamental work of all kinds and specialties. It will also specialize to a greater extent in the construction line following the plan of building and loan association. The purchaser pays monthly for his home instead of paying rent.

The system of building as used by the Keystone Co. has been approved and highly spoken of by some of the leading architects and contractors.

During a conversation with Mr. Frank Sadler of the architectural firm of Hilton & Sadler, Mr. Sadler pronounced the Keystone continuous air chamber and the triple air space, as very practical and the most practical in cement work. It insures a building against dampness and prevents heat or cold penetrating to the inner walls of the building.

The greatest drawback in the history of cement block building construction has been the fact that a block has not been produced to withstand moisture and the Keystone block with its continuous triple air space will absolutely not accept moisture.

H. W. Granger, secretary, and M. C. Lund, stock manager of the Keystone Co., have been interviewing the local business people for the past few days regarding the issue of stock and report conditions so favorable that operations on the construction department will be started sooner than was planned on.

Several stock sales have already been made.

Janesville is very fortunate in securing the Keystone Co. and much credit should be given the progressive business men for their part in locating the industry.

PACKERS AT PICNIC ENJOY GOOD TIME

Many Tobacco Men From Janesville and Surrounding Tobacco Centers Attended Picnic up the River.

Everyone who attended the annual picnic of the Rock County Tobacco Association yesterday at Crystal Springs had a fine time, and enjoyed themselves thoroughly for the weather was the finest that could have been asked, and the entertainment provided for them excellent.

There were two boats left the dock for the grounds yesterday morning, one at 10 and another at 12 o'clock. Upon their arrival at the Springs, the pleasure seekers themselves by ball or cards until a fine repast was ready to be served under the trees by the caterers who were caring for that end of the program. Seventy-five people sat down at the table and all of them were fully able to do justice to the meal prepared. After dinner, the afternoon was passed in talking politics, playing ball, other athletic sports. The Tobacco Dealers know how to entertain and yesterday proved no exception to the rule and everybody enjoyed themselves thoroughly. An Unfortunate Malady.
A newspaper down in Maine, in telling of the death of a man through being struck by a railroad train, adds that "It will be remembered that he met with a similar accident a year ago." It is to be hoped that the habit which he appears to have contracted will not become chronic.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

MAKE it a practice to frequently ask your children to define the words they use and hear other people using and you will be giving them a liberal education.

Such is the theory of a man at whose home I sometimes visit. He has five children, ranging from eight to nineteen years, and he is perpetually asking one or another of his flock to define some word that comes up in the conversation.

"An enlarged vocabulary."

"A power of expression."

"A habit of accuracy."

These are the benefits he claims his children derive from this training. And according to a school teacher who has had them all in her classes, they certainly seem to possess these qualities, wherever they have obtained them.

It is really remarkable how few people can define accurately even comparatively simple words. You all probably know the old trick of asking people what "spirited" means. To one person who will attempt to define the word there are at least 100 who will immediately begin waving their hands in the air to illustrate a spirited staircase.

We know in a vague way the meaning of many words that we cannot easily define. For instance, you doubtless use from time to time, such words as "shoddy," "unobtrusive," "abstract," "sumptuous," and in a vague way know the meaning of them, but try to define them and you will find how hard it is.

off-hand and then see how near you come to the professor. You many of us are like the student who, when asked by his professor to define "vacuum," said: "I can't exactly define it, but I've got it in my head."

Sometimes the words my friend asks his children to define are unusual words, of which he thinks all the family may not know the meaning, but quite as often they are simple, everyday words, whose definition he asks merely for the training in accuracy and self-expression.

The last time I was there someone used the word "morbid," and Mr. S. asked twelve-year-old Margaret to define it.

She thought a moment before she tried—that, also, is an excellent habit her father tries to inculcate—and then said that a morbid person was one who brooded over things. That is just about what I would have said myself, but referring to the dictionary—which, by the way, in this household, is a reasonably small edition, kept in a convenient spot, and not such an ark and so inaccessible that one prefers ignorance to the Herculean task of getting it out—proved the exact meaning to be "diseased," "unhealthy."

"Feasible," "optional" and "satire" were also defined in the course of the evening.

When we realize that although there are over 400,000 words in the English language, the average man does not use over 3,000 or 4,000, and the man who doesn't do much thinking gets along with 1,000, it seems to me we ought to be anxious to take advantage of any scheme for helping our children to enlarge their vocabularies.

Even if it were not for the by-products of accuracy and power of self-expression, I think this process would be worth while.

And, as it is, surely it is doubly so.

About the Children.

A Mother's Problem.

SHE was left a widow with four small children. She wanted desperately to keep these children with her, to keep the home, or the semblance of a home, for them and her. Her mother's love and mother's heart cried out for this. But it was a problem how to do it. She had no capital and she knew she could not earn enough money by ordinary work in the home to support them.

She got a position in a store. She took a small room; and the five lived in that room. The two older children went to school; and the two younger were left to the mercies of the neighbors and streets. She prepared their breakfast before she went to the store in the morning, and their supper after she came home at night. She toiled and slaved for them. They were good children, as children go. The two who went to school made fair progress; the two who roamed the streets did not come to any serious damage. And thus the little family lived.

But the mother is beginning to wonder if she has chosen the wisest course. She doesn't regret her hard work, nor does she repine at it. But she is beginning to give out under it. The work at the store taxes her strength to the utmost. To add to it the home work, which the care of four children involves, is gradually breaking her down. To be sure, she gives her children a roof and food, and such motherly love and counsel as frayed nerves and worn-out body make possible—for the physical has its claims and they cannot always be resisted. At best, their life is sordid and without brightness. And she is gradually growing less and less able to maintain it.

So she is wondering if it wouldn't be better to put the children into some institution where their physical needs will be attended to, possibly better than she can administer to them, and then, rested and recuperated herself, to stand in their lives for brightness and joy. Now, she is a dull, drudging figure, worn out and bowed with toil, who gives them nothing, but rather scant food and shabby clothes. By this other life, she could see them once a week, enter into their work and interests, give them some sort of a treat, be a mother they were proud of, and whose weekly visits they looked forward to with eager anticipation. With a mind free of worry and care, she could really be more of an inspiration mentally and morally than she is now. She is beginning to realize that to supply their physical needs is really the lowest office to perform.

Many will disclaim at her proposed change of plan. But isn't it the wisest? Isn't it really selfish mother-love that wants to keep them with her in utmost poverty? In the years to come, will she not stand for more, in their lives as the prettily dressed mother who comes to them once a week, hears all about their week's doings, counsels and encourages, and ends the visits with a jolly little treat of some kind, than she will as the mother who comes from the store, dingly dressed, too exhausted to listen to their talk, who gives them their supper, puts them to bed, and who is too poor ever to treat them to the pleasures children crave.

Children, while children, do not appreciate such self-sacrifice on the part of a mother. They have to become men and women fighting the battle of life for themselves to know what such a life of self-denial means. Then the mother may be gone beyond their expressions of appreciation. Or they may be ungrateful, and never make any return for all she has done. But as children, they see only results. And wouldn't the results under her proposed change of living be of more value than by her present method?

Food and drink are not all. The mind life and the soul life of a child are more important. The institution will give the children food and clothing, and she will be free to have time and energy to give them of the higher things of life.

Mothers are beginning to realize that looking after the physical needs of a child is really doing the least for them. It is, of course, all right, if one can give them all they need. But if something must be sacrificed, is it not better to sacrifice the ministrations to the physical, and to be an inspiration and a help to their mental and moral growth? To do this is surely, is it not, to perform the highest service for them?

WHAT DO YOU DO TO PROVIDE ENTERTAINMENT?

Summer Time and Cool Home Ideas
Either in the City or Country—
Can You Tell About It?

Have you ever stopped to think just what sort of an entertainment you would furnish a party of friends if you invited them to your home, up the river on a picnic or to an evening porch party?

Years ago when a picnic was talked of you always knew there would be some sort of athletic games, in which men and women, young and old, joined. There were lots of them then but nowadays it is hard to rack your brains for thoughts as to entertainments.

The Gazette knows that this subject is interesting to all its readers and feels certain that it would be a good thing to discuss openly. The card games that do for the winter evenings should be forgotten in the summer. The idea is to obtain a series of entertainments that bring out the good red blood of the visitors.

There are lots of forms that this entertainment can take and of the best answers to this contest The Gazette will give the following prizes:

First Prize—Colorful Fireless Cook stove.

Second Prize—Set of 45 pieces of Flow Blue Dishes.

Third Prize—Vacuum Bottle.

Fourth Prize—Sampson Kitchen Scales.

The contest will end August 1st.

SOME SUMMER SALADS.

A salad may be prepared from almost any combination, as well as soup. Most combinations, however, are more palatable than others.

Italian Salad.—Six cold, cooked potatoes cut fine, six flaked walnuts, three small cucumber pickles chopped and a stalk of celery cut fine. Serve with French dressing.

Almond Salad.—Stone and chop six olives. Add half a cupful of blanched and shredded almonds and half a cup of tender celery cut fine. Serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

Celery and Pineapple Salad.—Use equal parts of shredded pineapple and celery, cut fine. Sprinkle with lemon juice and chili. Add a few blanched almonds which have been pounded, mix with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce leaves.

Marquise Salad.—Slice tomatoes and sprinkle with chopped onion, parsley and finely cut celery. Serve on lettuce leaves with French dressing.

Celery and Radish Salad.—Prepare the celery as usual, wash the radishes and slice without peeling into thin slices. Chill thoroughly and mix with mayonnaise dressing. Serve on lettuce leaves and garnish with whole radishes.

Cherry Salad.—Remove the stones from two cups of cherries, add a cup of chopped walnuts and a cup of chopped celery. Mix with three-fourths of a cup of mayonnaise. Chill and serve on lettuce leaves; garnish with a whole cherry.

Imperial Punctilio.

Emperor William of Germany is a great stickler for form, even going so far as to wear his admiral's uniform when visiting the Aquarium. One of the young princes is a captain in the navy, and he is following in the old man's footsteps. It is narrated that recently his father met him in the hall of the private palace early in the morning arrayed in the full uniform of his rank.

"What does all this mean?" inquired the astonished emperor, surveying the gorgeously attired youngster.

"Nothing, sir," responded the prince, "except that I am proceeding to take my morning bath."

Types of Unselfishness.

There are two types of unselfishness. One is always found in connection with a noble self-esteem that prevents the virtue from degenerating into a vice; the other is associated with a self-effacement, a lack of individuality, a fickleness of will that make its owner merely a vehicle for a conspicuous exhibition of self-sacrifice.

Something Worth Remembering.

There's no reason for a man to get swelled up because he's so fastidious that he puts on a swallowtail and open-faced vest promptly at 6 o'clock every night. Every waiter does that.—Fort Worth Record.

March of Progress.

Every institution is a scaffolding to a better one. Do not overturn one until you are ready to erect another which, in turn, will be a scaffolding for something nobler.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN

OVERFEEDING BRINGS DISEASE.

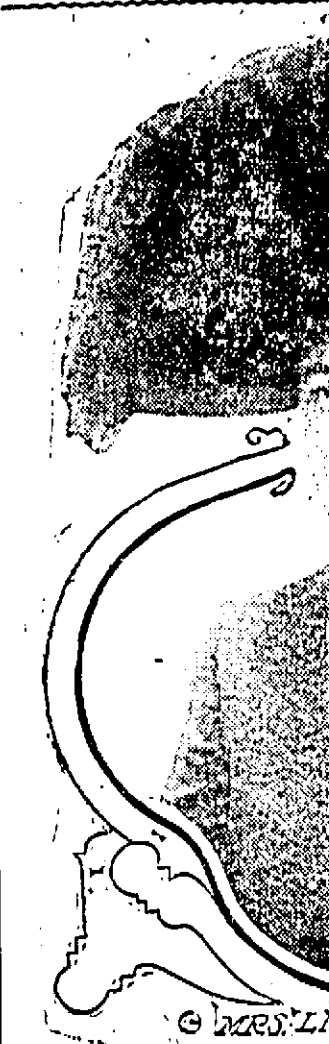

Overfeeding, causing accumulation of waste in the system and resulting congestion, physical and mental, is the chief physical cause of disease. Health, therefore, depends, on the physical side, upon avoiding overfeeding, while supplying every element of nutrition, some of which are wanting in the accidental dietaries followed by many.

To "eat anything" because the importance of the right mental condition is realized, is as wrong as to "think anything" because the food is right. The liver can make glycogen or liver sugar from beef, but much easier from toast or prunes. Albumen, essential to life, is contained only in certain foods. To eat the right food and worry about it, is no better than to worry about something else, and eat the right food. Worry kills; so does wrong eating.

The Saak An Important Feature.

Every debutante wears such on her evening frocks this summer and many who have no claims to girlhood have adopted this charming youthful style. With the simple marquise and lace neck pictured is shown one of the new saaks with an exaggerated bow which at the back and ends caught together in panel effect. The part of the saak that goes around the waist is shirred slightly and the big bow, made of four loops of the broad, soft ribbon, is centered by a wreath of pink satin roses. Another wreath of the roses catches the ends of the saak together.

BREAKS UP PRETTY JUNE WEDDING.

MRS. LILLIAN V. HAMER.
Chicago, Ill.—Cupid will have his troubles in straightening out the love affairs of William H. Gilbert, a Wisconsin millionaire who has been sued for breach of promise by a pretty cashier, Mrs. Lillian V. Hamer. According to her claims, her heart was sufficiently broken to require $100,000 to be given her by Mr. Gilbert to heal the wound.

The suit is the outcome of a romance which began at the Auditorium hotel three years ago. Mrs. Hamer has several affectionate letters to produce as evidence.

Mrs. Hamer says Gilbert offered to give her a large amount of money as heart balm or to pay her expenses on a European trip. She says she declined his offer and a few days later became very ill.

Two weeks after the final meeting between Mrs. Hamer and the millionaire it is said to have occurred, Mrs. Hamer read the announcement of his wedding to another woman in an Oshkosh (Wis.) newspaper.

OUR FIRST POTATOES.

July 13.—With the defeat of the Spanish Armada, the colonization of America was open to the world, and Sir Walter Raleigh was the title of "father of English colonization" on the soil of America. He was granted a charter by Queen Elizabeth and sailed for America. He landed off the coast of North Carolina, July 13, 1584 and was the first to name the eastern coast of North America Virginia in honor of the Virgin Queen. Raleigh is given credit of bringing to the old world their first sight of potatoes and tobacco. The first of these would probably insure his election as an alderman in a number of wards in New York, but at his other trial the loss said the better, particularly in view of the introduction of the cigarette. The first colony was not a success, and the members were glad to get back to England. Another was sent including 17 women who landed in 1587. Raleigh had to return to England and the war with Spain delayed his return to the colony so long that when he did get back all traces of his people had vanished. Years after, light haired and blue-eyed Indians were found which gave rise to the supposition that the colony had been absorbed by the Indians. Raleigh afterward fell into disfavor with the king and after spending years in prison was beheaded.

Finally Ascended Mountain.

After years of effort to reach its summit, which lies 6,500 feet above sea level, Mount Mothnum, Australia, has at last been conquered by motorists. The other day two motorists climbed up to its highest summit through gum tree forests, and over vast wastes of fern and sand. Fully 100 cars have attempted to climb this mountain but failed. The grades are so sharp that it is difficult in a long pull to lubricate the front cylinders of motors.

Wonderful Memory.

"There seems something more speakingly incomprehensible in the powers, the failures, the inequalities of memory, than in any other of our intelligences. The memory is sometimes so retentive, so serviceable, so obedient; at others, so bewildered and so weak; and at others again, so tyrannical, so beyond control."—Jane Austen.

Cooking Hint.

Whenever you are baking cookies pin a piece of muslin over the broad board, stretching it tight. Flour the muslin well, and you can roll the dough as soft and thin as you please. A piece of muslin around the rolling pin is another improvement.

A Healthful Old Age for Women

The turn of life is the most critical period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very distressing symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, extreme nervousness and despondency are symptoms of this condition.

Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

If this period is safely passed through the prospect will be good for a long period of sound health and comparative immunity from disease.

Here is Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon at this period:

Alton Station, Ky.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For months I suffered from female troubles in consequence of my age, and thought I could not live. I wrote you and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I thank you so much for the good it has done me."—Mrs. Emma Bailey, R. R. No. 1, Alton Station, Ky.

Kewaskum, Wis.—"Your medicine was a blessing to me in my sickness at Change of Life. I cannot describe what I suffered for five long years from headache, backache, dizziness, no sleep, palpitation of heart and irregularities which are common at that period and sometimes continue for weeks at a time.

"I have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am 54 years old and can do all my work."—Mrs. Carl Dahlke, Kewaskum, Wis.

SHOWERS EXPECTED; COOL WAVE IN WEEK

Weather Disturbances Which Will Pass Over Continent Middle of This Month Will Bring Relief.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of the disturbance to cross the continent July 16 to 20, warm wave 15 to 19, cool wave 18 to 22. During the passage of this disturbance showers are expected to be more frequent and more general than for some time past. Temperatures will go up rapidly but will not remain high very long. Storm forces will increase and near July 20 small spots are expected on the central parts of the sun. This disturbance will include the most stormy part of the month and these storms will give relief to many drought and heat stricken areas where the last preceding cool wave shall have failed to bring showers.

The next disturbances will reach the Pacific coast about July 23, cross the Pacific slope by the close of the 24th; great central valleys 25th to 27th; eastern sections the 28th. A warm wave will cross the Pacific slope about July 23; great central valleys the 25th and eastern sections the 27th. A cool wave will cross the Pacific slope about July 28th; the great central valleys the 28th and the eastern sections the 30th.

This disturbance will inaugurate another hot and dry period; another dead calm and another sweltering heat period, but not so bad as we have passed through, and having been used to the intense heat of the summer perhaps we shall not suffer much.

If a cool wave comes to the grain sections about the middle of July, grain prices will probably slide downward, producers will get a scare and grain, particularly corn, will be rushed to market. Don't do it. Farmers get very foolish when they rush corn to market before they know the results of August crop weather. An old saying was: "There is luck in leisure."

If farmers get uneasy and want to let go of their old corn, local cash dealers should take it in and keep it. Don't ship to the central markets; they will be more anxious for it later on.

The last bulletin discussed the value of grain options to the miller. Take another class. There are grain firms who contract to deliver a million bushels in Europe on an agreed price. Such contracts may bring a profit or a loss of one hundred thousand dollars and there is no method of insurance that will cover the rise in prices except options. When the firm buys the same amount of option and then no matter which way grain prices go, the contractors know what their profits will be. It is foolishness to talk about abolishing the boards of trade. They would be useful institutions if the millionaire manipulator, who is the real threat of the grain business, could be put out. Go after him and thereby purify the boards of trade and then they will be useful. They are the outposts of the big manipulators while the farmers and small option speculators are the losers. Millers, agencies and contractors are not to be classed as speculators.

Toward the close of the afternoon an elaborate four course luncheon was served.

Somewhat Indefinite Promise.

Having been lined for neglect of duty, a postal subordinate in India addressed his chief in the following terms: "Your honor may be right, I may be wrong; I may be right and honor wrong, let honor give me back the fine, and then at day of resurrection, when all hearts will be open, if I am wrong, I will most gladly, sir, return your honor the money."

Wanted a Witness.

Neighbor (whose bell is rung late)—"What do you want?" Clubman—"Sorry to trouble you, Frau Schmidt, but I must go back to the club, as my wife won't let me in, and I wanted to be able to call you as a witness that I was here at ten o'clock."—Fliegende Blätter.

Trouble.

One of the troubles about borrowing trouble is that the person who borrows it doesn't reduce the stock that is being carried by anybody else.

KANSAS WOMAN SENTENCED TO HANG, PRAYS FOR END OF DRAUGHT AND STATE GETS HEAVY RAIN.

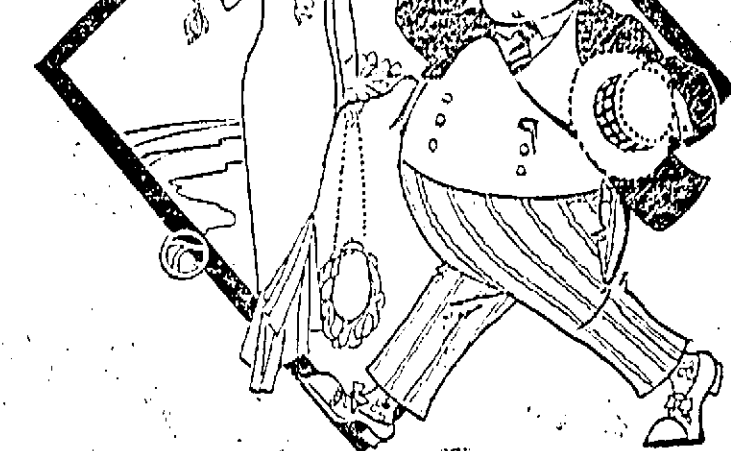

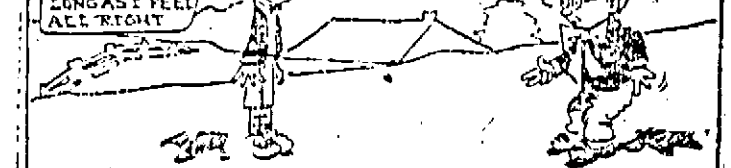

Mrs. Lella Ford, whose prayers were answered in a miraculous way.

De Queen, Arkansas.—In a most miraculous way, the prayers of Mrs. Lella Ford who has been sentenced to hang for murder, have been answered. The drought which had threatened the crops of the State has broken.

Mrs. Ford promised. She declared that she would first ask for rain that the crops might be spared.

She prayed during the latter part of the next three days and her supplications were answered in a shower that settled the dust and cooled the air.

The draught was broken. She is now praying for the freedom of herself and husband and there is considerable likelihood that this prayer will also be answered.

They slug of a June day that's rare. Yet the heat of a blistering sun. As you sink 'neath its glare, makes the inference fair. That June days are a bit overdone. Piled a kicker.

Woman's Capability.

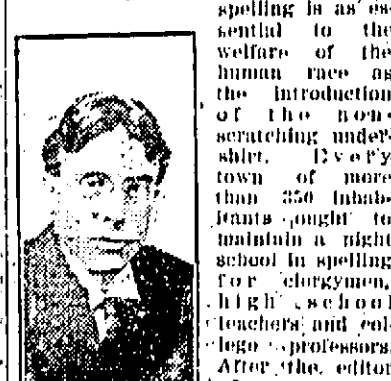

It is said that a woman does not possess the judicial mind. Maybe not, but she can always be trusted to make an equitable distribution of the jam among half a dozen children.

Tit for Tat.

Mame—"Isn't this miff Aunt Sarah sent me a beauty?" Dorothy—"It's nice, but I want a much larger one." Mame—"Of course you do, but this is plenty big enough for my hands."—Lippincott's.

FARM NOTES.

Not Written for Farmers. By H. L. RANN.

One of the most encouraging signs of the times is the revival of the old-fashioned spelling down match. Good spelling is as essential to the welfare of the human race as the introduction of the non-scratching under-shirt. Every town of more than 250 inhabitants ought to maintain a night school in spelling for clergymen, high school teachers and college professors. After the editor of a newspaper has straightened out the orthography in a marriage notice written by a minister with a D. D., L. L. D., B. A. and V. S. attached to his birth plate, he will tell whether "successful" is spelled with a "c" or a "k." The average college graduate has about as much idea of how to spell words of more than one syllable as Balaam's ass with his blinders on. We have a theological friend who always spells "cess" with a "k" and "hard cider" with an "s," but in the pulpit he can point bromine so fast that your wife will detect it on your clothes. If the editor should print verbatim the contributions he receives from school marms and other literati, he would be liable to arrest for committing mayhem on Webster's Unabridged. More printers have gone the booze route as the result of trying to unravel the books and eyes in an ordinary notice prepared by some high school professor than from any other cause except spearing tin snappers in the "k" box with frozen fingers. The girl who will deliberately marry a man who talks about "preparation" and calls her his "sweetheart," needs to be surprised if her offspring have to take along a pocket dictionary when they call the cows. We need a reform in spelling worse than a law against duplex sideburns.
